Massachusetts, and was pending whose a motion to adjourn abruptly ended the discussion.

There was no indication as to how the committee would have voted, but several leading Prohibition members agreed last night that in view of the manifest differences between the two issues and the possibility that the sale of beer and light wines might be permitted until January by presidential proclamation, the wisest thing to do was to report out the war-time bill early today and the constitutional bill later in the day. In this way there is every assurance, they said, that the war-time bill would be passed probably by both houses before the end of the month, at which time the "dry" act becomes effective.

An amendment by Representative Steele, Democrat, Pennsyvania, which, it was admitted later, would have nullified the entire law, got through by a vote of 9 to 8, but subsequently was reconsidered and defeated, 10 to 7. The amendment stipulated that provisions of the enforcement act, except as they relate to interstate and foreign commerce, should not be effective in any state until ratified by the people, it was said last night that one or two members voted for the amendment as a "joke."

After more than a gozen committee roll calls on various provisions, Mr. Walsh, Mr. Gard and others jumped actively into the fight with a vigorous demand for separation of the measures. Mr. Walsh declared that the committee ought to take the buil by the horns, get the war-time enforcement bill introduced at the last session before the beause and wrse guick enactment. Then house and urge quick enactment. Then if the president wanted to lift the ban it would only be necessary, he said, to suspend the act providing for war-time enforcement and not interfere with legslation affecting constitutional probil
